

IMPACT REPORT

2018-2019

JOLTEON AND SYLVEON,
ADOPTED SEPTEMBER 2019

AN ERA OF INCREDIBLE GROWTH AND CHANGE

What an amazing year it has been. We set out to save more animals' lives than ever before in our 139-year history — and we did just that! In fiscal year 2018-2019, we doubled the number of animals we take in annually to nearly 50,000 and expanded our services and programs to meet the needs of our San Diego region.

Thanks to the support of our community, we are helping to shape the landscape for animal welfare across the country and better serve animals in San Diego. We are proud of the impact we are making, including ensuring that San Diego Humane Society maintains zero euthanasia of healthy and treatable animals throughout San Diego County. And we've continued to develop innovative and lifesaving programs that are pushing the boundaries of the impact we and other animal welfare organizations can make. A few highlights from this year include:

- Opened the state-of-the-art Pilar & Chuck Bahde Center for Shelter Medicine, the first of its kind in California and an essential component of providing exceptional veterinary care for thousands of animals.
- Rolled our Animal Rescue Reserve and Special Response Team into one cohesive entity: the Emergency Response Team, which is specially FEMA-trained. They partner with the Red Cross and other local, state and national emergency response agencies and can deploy at a moment's notice.
- Opened the Pilar & Chuck Bahde Wildlife Center to ensure that the more than 320 species and 12,000 wild animals in San Diego County always have a resource for rehabilitative help when they critically need it.
- Built our new and improved Behavior Center, only one of a handful of facilities throughout the country that provides lifesaving behavior training for animals who need more help than a traditional shelter can offer.

- Expanded our Humane Law Enforcement team, one of the largest in California, to respond to the nearly 26,000 calls we received to investigate animal cruelty, assist animals in imminent danger and educate our community on responsible pet ownership and safety.
- Through our PAWS San Diego program, we delivered 1.8 million meals to pets in need and brought pet care services and resources directly into underserved communities through our community pet events.

We're forever grateful to you for supporting San Diego Humane Society every step of the way. Together, we can truly save more animals throughout San Diego — and even across the country — as we help other shelters model our innovative and lifesaving programs in their own communities. With you by our side, we look forward to continuing to keep San Diego County safe for animals and improve the lives of the people who love them. We hope you enjoy this look back at the past year and all we've accomplished together.

Sincerely,

BY THE NUMBERS

July 1, 2018, marked one of the biggest evolutions in the history of San Diego Humane Society as we officially began providing animal services to six more cities, bringing our total to 12 cities throughout San Diego County. It was a huge undertaking but incredibly rewarding, as we are able to be there for more animals in their time of need.

ABANDONED AND EMACIATED DOG RECEIVES A SECOND CHANCE

In March, our officers responded to a call of an abandoned dog in an orange grove in Bandy Canyon. They found a large breed dog weighing less than 20 pounds, weak and lying in filth. He was so emaciated, we did not know if he would make it.

Remington battled pneumonia and a low heart rate. For months, we gave him love and care so that he could gain weight and build his strength back. Once Remington beat the odds, he was adopted into a new home! His new mom knew it was a fit immediately, saying:

"I can't thank Remi's caregivers enough for all the love and attention they poured into this sweet dog. It's only been 48 hours, but he's adjusting well. His cat sister is a bit disgruntled at the change in her life circumstance, but hopefully, sometime soon they can coexist peacefully. Remi 'sits' like a champ (thank you all for training him so well!), loves his toys and follows me around the house investigating everything — especially if there is a chance for food appearing."

EMERGENCY RESPONSE TEAM

The Emergency Response Team acts during times of tragedy to rescue animals in danger. The ERT is specially FEMA-trained to respond during disasters and is always prepared to deploy locally and beyond to assist with animal rescue and care.

WEST FIRE

Set up kennels and provided help for 15 families with 32 animals.

CAMP FIRE

Three teams traveled to Butte County to help animals displaced by this tragic wildfire that spread across Northern California last fall. Cared for 1,400 animals at a temporary shelter in Oroville.

HURRICANE FLORENCE

Deployed to Horry County, South Carolina, to assist with rescue efforts after the hurricane hit the East Coast. Helped more than 100 animals, including dogs, cats, a goat, a 150-pound pig and cattle.

HURRICANE MICHAEL

Helped with daily animal care in the aftermath of this hurricane. At the same time, 93 dogs were flown to San Diego Humane Society from the Florida Panhandle to alleviate overcrowding in local shelters for pets displaced by the storm.

SHELTER MEDICINE

INCREASE IN MEDICAL SERVICES

Shelter medicine is vastly different than traditional veterinary medicine: Medical staff must be prepared each day to care for a wide variety of animals — from cats and dogs to horses, reptiles, birds and more — who often come to us with no medical history. Our world-class shelter medicine program is essential in our commitment to zero euthanasia of healthy and treatable animals.

PILAR & CHUCK BAHDE CENTER FOR SHELTER MEDICINE

The new center opened in November 2018 and is the first shelter hospital of its kind in California. Not only does it help us care for nearly 40,000 companion animals annually, it is a teaching hospital at the forefront of training the next generation of shelter veterinarians through a comprehensive internship and externship program. Whether an animal needs a spay/neuter surgery, treatment for diabetes or a complicated orthopedic surgery, our highly skilled veterinary team is here to provide care to homeless animals in need.

SCREEN DOOR REPAIR KIT SAVES TORTOISE'S SHELL

A good Samaritan brought a Russian tortoise with serious injuries to his shell to us for help. The tortoise had a large hole above the shoulder that was likely caused by a lawnmower. At the Bahde Center for Shelter Medicine, our veterinary team got creative to repair the tortoise's injuries. They used a screen door repair kit and fiberglass epoxy to form a prosthetic shell over the broken area. The patched shell can protect the tortoise from further injury from predators. While he was under our care, we named the tortoise Teddy and found him a new home. The creative solution that made him adoptable was featured in the American Veterinary Medical Association's "Animal Health SmartBrief."

KITTEN PROGRAM

The Kitten Program provides around-the-clock care to our most delicate animals through our 24-hour Kitten Nursery or in foster homes, helping them grow into happy, healthy cats.

HELPING BEYOND OUR COMMUNITY

Kitten Resource Center: Over these 10 years, the Kitten Program has developed and refined models that can be scaled and replicated. This year we developed an online portal to help others across the country create kitten programs in their own communities to begin to reduce euthanasia and save even more animal lives. To date, more than 20 organizations nationwide model their nurseries and foster programs after ours — one more way San Diego Humane Society is a national leader in the sheltering community.

KITTENS SURVIVE 500-MILE DRIVE IN STEEL COLUMN

Construction workers were shocked to discover a litter of kittens stowed away on their truck after driving 500 miles from Hayward, California, to San Diego. Employees of DPR Construction were at their work site when they heard meows coming from a 60-foot steel column. The employees tried coaxing the kittens out with food but eventually had to tip the column to get to them. Five kittens slid out, and the construction workers called San Diego Humane Society for help. Humane Officers picked up the 1-week-old kittens and brought them to the Kitten Nursery. The kittens, named Crowbar, Rebar, Jackhammer, Chisel and Piper, went to foster homes to recover and grow up. Then they were adopted by employees from the construction site where they were found!

BEHAVIOR HELPLINE CALLS

Behavior concerns are among the most significant challenges pet owners and shelters face, and San Diego Humane Society addresses both. We provide pet owners with the tools and resources they need to address certain behaviors before they reach the point of needing to relinquish their pets to a shelter. And our Behavior Center rehabilitates animals with such severe behavioral issues they would otherwise be considered unadoptable.

BEHAVIOR CENTER

Our animal friends come in all shapes and sizes, each with their own unique personalities and experiences. Like us, some are sensitive to their surroundings and others adapt more easily. However, hundreds of animals come through our doors each year with behavior challenges that would make them unadoptable in most communities — and this is where our Behavior Center comes in. Specially designed, it's one of only a few Behavior Centers in the country, bringing hope for hundreds of our community's most at-risk animals. Thanks to the hard work of our behavior experts, animals with behavior challenges receive the personalized attention and modification plans they need to be adopted.

BOSCO

When this high-energy pup was brought to our Oceanside Campus as a stray, he needed the help of our Behavior Center to overcome extreme separation anxiety and a lack of impulse control. Our team also discovered that Bosco was deaf, meaning his needs were especially unique. We knew that with some work, love and patience, Bosco would become a wonderful companion — so he was transferred to our Behavior Center. For eight months, our behavior specialists provided Bosco with the attention and rehabilitation he needed to overcome these issues while learning to trust people. When he was ready to graduate, Bosco caught the eye of his new family and today he is thriving in his new home.

PROJECT WILDLIFE

Project Wildlife is the primary resource in San Diego County to care for wildlife who are ill, injured or orphaned. As our human population grows, we have less natural space for wildlife, which dramatically increases the need for rehabilitative care and conservation. Project Wildlife provides these animals — from raptors and rabbits to squirrels and ducks — the nurturing care they need to survive, whether it's specialized veterinary care, injury rehabilitation or simply a safe place to mature before being released back into the wild, where they belong.

NEW PILAR & CHUCK BAHDE WILDLIFE CENTER

The Bahde Wildlife Center opened in March 2019 and provides an environment created for the specific needs of wild animals. This 5,200-square-foot facility includes a hospital for advanced medicine, large outdoor pre-release enclosures that allow animals to build their flight muscles and more.

BUN-BELIEVABLE

These two bunnies were found in a children's sandbox and brought to Project Wildlife when they were just a few days old. They weighed just 39 and 42 grams during their first exam — that's about the weight of a ballpoint pen! Newborn bunnies are extremely vulnerable, so we provided them with around-the-clock bottle-feeding, temperature regulation and frequent checkups until they were healthy enough to be released back home — into the wild.

PAWS SAN DIEGO

Whether they have low incomes, are experiencing homelessness or are living with chronic illnesses or disabilities, pet parents who need help can turn to PAWS San Diego. Tough times should not mean having to lose your pet, so PAWS is San Diego County's safety net to keep pet families together and animals out of shelters.

TOGETHER FOREVER

When Debi took in a homeless dog who had been found in a creek in Fallbrook, she likely didn't know that she was adopting a lifelong companion who would bring her so much joy. But today, her pup, Nikki, is the center of her world.

Debi lives with a traumatic brain injury and experiences episodes of overstimulation. When this happens, Nikki will snuggle up next to her and calm her brain waves down. As a result of her injury, Debi can also experience depression. Nikki helps Debi manage her symptoms by encouraging her to get out of the house — they even walk 2 miles at the park every week.

Debi and her devoted companion provide each other with so much enrichment and fulfillment — and PAWS San Diego provides Debi with everything Nikki needs, including pet food, treats, flea treatments and more. "She's a delight and makes my whole life complete," Debi says. "I love her with my whole heart and don't know what I would do without her."

San Diego Animal Welfare Coalition Accords

In August 2004, a summit of animal welfare industry leaders from across the nation convened at Asilomar in Pacific Grove, California, for the purpose of building bridges across varying philosophies, developing relationships, agreeing on common definitions and gathering statistics in a standardized format. The statistical guidelines developed from the spirit and vision of this meeting came to be known as the Asilomar Accords, which serve as an important tool in consistently tracking the progress of eliminating the euthanasia of healthy or treatable companion animals in shelters across the United States. All member organizations of the San Diego Animal Welfare Coalition (SDAWC), which are listed below, utilize the definitions prescribed by these accords.
